MILWAUKEE DAILY SENTINEL.

VOLUME VIII.—NEW SERIES. MILWAUKEE, TUESDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 9, 1852 WHOLE NUMBER 2423.

Milwaukee Daily Sentinel.

PUBLISHED EVERY MORNING, (SUNDAYS EXCEPTED,) BY

RUFUS KING & CO.,

AT THE OFFICE,

Nos. 386 & 387 EAST WATER STREET,

OPPOSITE THE NEWHALL HOUSE,

IN THE SECOND, THIRD, AND FOURTH STORIES OF LUDINGTON'S NEW BRICK BLOCK.

TERMS:

THE DAILY SENTINEL will be left at the door of City Subscribers at SIX DOLLARS a year, payable Quarterly for Six Cents a Month; or, Ten Cents a Week, INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE.

THE WEEKLY SENTINEL—THREE DOLLARS a year, IN ADVANCE, or within the first month after the receipt of the PAPER IN WHICH IT IS PAID, EXCEPTED; WEEKLY PAPER—Two DOLLARS a year, INVARIABLY IN ADVANCE, AND THE PAPER DISCONTINUED, WHEN THE PERIOD FOR WHICH IT IS PAID EXPIRES. TO CLUBS of TEN or MORE, TO ONE ADDRESS, the Weekly will be sent for ONE DOLLAR A COPY.

TO OUR ADVERTISERS.

IN ORDER that there may be no misunderstanding in relation to Advertising, we have fixed the rates determined upon in our daily papers, from Jan. 1st, 1851:

1 square (per year)	$12 00	13 insert's,	2 weeks,	$2 75
1 "	10 00	12 "	1 "	1 50
1 "	8 00	11 "	6 times,	1 25
1 "	6 00	10 "	5 "	1 00
1 "	5 00	9 "	4 days,	87½
1 "	4 50	8 "	3 "	75
1 "	4 00	7 "	2 "	62½
1 "	3 50

Twelve lines Nonpareil (or less) make a square. Business Advertisements, "Wants," "Lost," "Found," "For Sale," "To Let," &c., not exceeding a square, 50 per cent. above the above rates.

Yearly Advertisements, with a change once a week, $60; 2 squares, $80; 3 do., $100; 4 do., $120; 5 do., $140; 6 do., $160. Larger ones in proportion. Quarterly Advertisements discontinued (unless at the discretion of the proprietors), will be charged one dollar per square.

Persons wishing to display their yearly or semi-yearly advertisements, must give notice at the Counting Room. All yearly advertisers discontinuing their advertising before the time is out, will be charged at the transient rates.

The privilege of Annual Advertisers is limited to their own immediate business, and all advertisements for the benefit of other persons, or on other business, must be paid for at the usual rates.

Communications, the object of which is to promote private interests, must be paid for at the rate of 10 Cents per square for each insertion.

In all cases where advertisements are sent in, specifying the number of insertions desired, they will be charged Cash per square for the first insertion, and 25 Cents for each subsequent insertion in the Weekly.

Advertisements not accompanied with written directions, will be inserted ONE MONTH, and charged accordingly.

CHAPTER XXIII—ESTHER'S NARRATIVE.

Concluded.

"Again you find us, Miss Summerson," said he, "using our little arts to polish! Again the condescension of its lovely presence. It is much in occasion of its lovely presence. It is much in these times (and we have made an awfully degenerating business of it since the days of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent—my patron, if I may presume to say so,) to experience that department is not wholly trodden under foot by mechanics. That it can yet bask in the smile of Beauty, my dear madam."

I said nothing, which I thought a suitable reply, and he took a pinch of snuff.

"My dear son," said Mr. Turveydrop, "you have four schools this afternoon. I would recommend a hasty sandwhich."

"Thank you, father," returned Prince, "I will be sure to be punctual. My dear father, may I be sure to be punctual. My dear father, may I beg you to prepare your mind for what I am going to say."

"Good Heaven!" exclaimed the Model, pale and aghast, as Prince and Caddy, hand in hand, bent down before him. "What is this? Is this lunacy! Or what is this?"

"Father," returned Prince with great submission, "I love this young lady, and we are engaged."

"Engaged!" cried Mr. Turveydrop, reclining on the sofa, and shutting out the sight with his hand. "An arrow launched at my brain, by my own child!"

"We have been engaged for some time, father," faltered Prince; "and Miss Summerson, hearing of it, advised that we should declare the fact to you, and was so very kind as to attend on the present occasion. Miss Jellyby is a young lady who deeply respects you, father."

Mr. Turveydrop uttered a groan.

"No, pray don't! Pray don't, father," urged Prince. "Miss Jellyby is a young lady who deeply respects you, and our first desire is to consider your comfort."

Mr. Turveydrop sobbed.

"Boy," said Mr. Turveydrop, "it is well that your sainted mother is spared this pang. Strike deep, and spare not. Strike home, sir, strike home!"

"Pray, don't say so, father," implored Prince, in tears, "it goes to my heart. I do assure you, father, that our first wish and intention is to consider your comfort. Caroline and I do not forget our duty—what is my duty is Caroline's, as we have often said together—and, with your approval and consent, father, we will devote ourselves to making your life agreeable."

"Strike home," murmured Mr. Turveydrop.—"Strike home!"

But he seemed to listen, I thought, too.

"My dear father," returned Prince, "we well know what little comforts you are accustomed to, and you have a right to; and it will always be our study, and our pride, to provide those before any thing. If you will bless us with your approval and consent, father, we shall not think of being married until it is quite agreeable to you; and when we are married, we shall always make you—of course—our first consideration. You must ever be the Head and Master here, father; and we feel how truly unnatural it would be in us, if we failed to know it, or if we failed to exert ourselves in every possible way to please you."

Mr. Turveydrop underwent a severe internal struggle, and came upright on the sofa again, with his cheeks puffing over his stiff cravat; a perfect model of parental deportment.

"My son!" said Mr. Turveydrop. "My children! I can not resist your prayer. Be happy!"

His benignity, as he raised his future daughter-in-law and stretched out his hand to his son (who kissed it with affectionate respect and gratitude,) was the most confusing sight I ever saw.

"My children," said Mr. Turveydrop, paternally encircling Caddy with his left arm as she sat beside him, and patting his right hand gracefully on his hip. "My son and daughter, your happiness shall be my care. I will watch over you. You shall always live with me;" (meaning, of course, I will always live with you); "this house is henceforth as much yours as mine; consider it your home. May you long live to share it with me!"

The power of his Department was such, that they really were as much overcome with thankfulness as if, instead of quartering himself upon them for the rest of his life, he were making some munificent sacrifice in their favor.

"For myself, my children," said Mr. Turveydrop, "I am falling into the sear and yellow leaf, and it is impossible to say how long the last feeble traces of gentlemanly Deportment may linger in this weaving and spinning age. But, so long I will do my duty to society, and will show myself, as usual, about town. My wants are few and simple. My little apartment here, my few essentials for the toilet, my frugal morning meal, and my little dinner, will suffice. I charge your dutiful affection with the supply of these requirements, and I charge myself with all the rest."

They were overpowered afresh by his enormous generosity.

"My son," said Mr. Turveydrop, "for those little points in which you are deficient—points of Deportment which can be born with a man—which may be improved by cultivation, but can never be originated—you may still rely on me. I have been faithful to my post, since the days of His Royal Highness the Prince Regent; and I will not desert it now. No, my son. If you have ever contemplated your father's poor position with a feeling of pride, you may rest assured that he will be nothing to tarnish it. For yourself, Prince, whose character is different (we cannot be all alike, nor is it advisable that we should,) work, be industrious, earn money, and extend the connection as much as possible."

"That you may depend I will do, dear father, with all my heart," replied Prince.

"I have no doubt of it," said Mr. Turveydrop. "Your qualities are not dull shining, my dear child, but they are steady and useful. And to both of you, my children, I would merely observe, in the spirit of a sainted Woman on whose path I had the happiness of casting, I believe, some my offlight—take care of the establishment, take care of my simple wants, and bless you both!"

Old Mr. Turveydrop then became so very gallant, in honor of the occasion, that I told Caddy we must really go to Thavies Inn at once if we were to go at all that day. So we took our departure, after a very loving farewell between Caddy and her betrothed; and during our walk she was so happy, and so full of old Mr. Turveydrop's praises, that I would not have said a word in his disparagement for any consideration.

The house in Thavies Inn had bills in the windows announcing that it was to let, and looked dirtier and gloomier and ghastlier than ever. The name of poor Mr. Jellyby had appeared in the list of Bankrupts, but a day or two before; and he was shut up in the dining-room with two gentlemen, and a heap of blue bags, and account-books, and papers, making the most desperate endeavors to understand his affairs. They appeared to me to be quite beyond his comprehension; for when Caddy took me into the diningroom by mistake, and we came upon Mr. Jellyby in his spectacles, forlornly fenced into a corner by the great dining-table and the two gentlemen, he seemed to have given up the whole thing, and to be speechless and insensible.

Going up-stairs to Mrs. Jellyby's room (the children were all screaming in the kitchen and there was no servant to be seen), we found that lady in the midst of a voluminous correspondence, opening, reading, and sorting letters, with a great accumulation of torn covers on the floor. She was so pre-occupied that at first she did not know me, though she sat looking at me with that curious, bright-eyed, far-off look of hers.

"O! Miss Summerson!" she said at last. "I was thinking of something so different! I hope you are well. I am happy to see you. Mr. Jarndyce and Miss Clare quite well?"

I hoped in return that Mr. Jellyby was quite well.

"Why, not quite, my dear," said Mrs. Jellyby, in the calmest manner. "He has been unfortunate in his affairs, and is a little out of spirits.—Happily for me, I am so much engaged that I have no time to think about it. We have, at the present moment, one hundred and seventy families, Miss Summerson, averaging five persons in each, either gone or going to the left bank of the Niger."

I thought of the one family so near us, who were neither gone nor going to the left bank of the Niger, and wondered how she could be so placid.

"You have brought Caddy back, I see," observed Mrs. Jellyby, with a glance at her daughter.—"It has become quite a novelty to see her here.—She has almost deserted her old employment, and in fact obliges me to employ a boy."

"I am sure, Ma," began Caddy—

"Now you know, Caddy," her mother mildly interposed, "that I do employ a boy, who is now at his dinner. What is the use of your contradicting me?"

"I was not going to contradict, Ma," returned Caddy. "I was only going to say, that surely you wouldn't have me be a mere drudge all my life."

"I believe, my dear," said Mrs. Jellyby, still opening her letters, casting her bright eyes smilingly over them, and sorting them as she spoke, "that you have a business example before you in your mother. Besides. A mere drudge! If you had any sympathy with the destinies of the human race, it would raise you high above any such idea. But you have none. I have often told you, Caddy, you have no such sympathy."

"Not if it's Africa, Ma, I have not."

"Of course you have not. Now, if I were not happily so much engaged, Miss Summerson," said Mrs. Jellyby, sweetly casting her eyes for a moment on me, and considering where to put the particular letter she had just opened, "this would distress and disappoint me. But I have so much to think of in connection with Borrioboola Gha, and it is so necessary I should concentrate myself, that there is my remedy you see."

As Caddy gave me a glance of entreaty, and as Mrs. Jellyby was looking far away into Africa straight through my bonnet and head, I thought straight through my bonnet and head, I thought it a good opportunity to come to the subject of my visit, and to attract Mrs. Jellyby's attention.

"Perhaps," I began, "you will wonder what has brought me here to interrupt you."

"I am always delighted to see Miss Summerson," said Mrs. Jellyby, pursuing her employment with a placid smile. "Though I wish," and she shook her head, "she was more interested in the Borrioboolan project."

"I have come with Caddy," said I, "because Caddy justly thinks she ought not to have a secret from her mother; and fancies I shall encourage and aid her (tho' I am sure I don't know how,) in impacting one."

"Caddy," said Mrs. Jellyby, pausing for a moment in her occupation, and then serenely pursuing it after shaking her head, "you are going to tell me some nonsense."

Caddy untied the strings of her bonnet, took her bonnet off, and letting it dangle on the floor by the strings, and crying heartily, said, "Ma, I am engaged!"

"O, you ridiculous child!" observed Mrs. Jellyby, with an abstracted air, as she looked over the dispatch last opened; "what a goose you are!"

"I am engaged, Ma," sobbed Caddy, "to young Mr. Turveydrop, at the Academy: and old Mr. Turveydrop, (who is a very gentlemanly man indeed,) has given his consent, and I beg and pray you'll give me yours, Ma, because I never could be happy without it. I never, never could!" sobbed Caddy, quite forgetful of her general complainings, and of every thing but her natural affection.

"You see again, Miss Summerson," observed Mrs. Jellyby, serenely, "what a happiness it is to be so much occupied as I am, not to have this necessity for self-concentration that I have! Here is Caddy engaged to a dancing-master's son—mixed up with people who have no more sympathy with the destinies of the human race, than she has herself! This, too, when Mr. Gusher, one of the first philanthropists of our time, has mentioned to me that he was really disposed to be interested in her!"

"Ma, I always hated and detested Mr. Gusher!" sobbed Caddy.

"Caddy, Caddy!" returned Mrs. Jellyby, opening another letter with the greatest complacency, "I have no doubt you did. How could you do otherwise, being totally destitute of the sympathies with which he overflows! Now, if my public duties were not a favorite child to me, if I were not occupied with large measures on a vast scale, these petty details might grieve me very much, Miss Summerson? But can I permit the film of a pen, proceeding on the part of Caddy (from whom I expect nothing else), to interpose between me and the great African continent? No. No!" repeated Mrs. Jellyby, in a calm, clear voice, and with an agreeable smile as she opened more letters and sorted them. "No, indeed!"

I was so unprepared for the perfect coolness of this reception, though I might have expected it, that I did not know what to say. Caddy seemed equally at a loss. Mrs. Jellyby continued to open and sort letters; and to repeat occasionally, in quite a charming tone of voice, and with a smile of perfect composure, "No, indeed!"

"I hope, Ma," sobbed poor Caddy at last, "you are not angry."

"O Caddy, you really are an absurd girl," returned Mrs. Jellyby, "to ask such questions, after what I have said of the preoccupation of my mind."

"And I hope, Ma, you give us your consent, and wish us well?" said Caddy.

"You are a nonsensical child to have done any thing of this kind," said Mrs. Jellyby; "and a degenerate child, when you might have devoted yourself to the great public measure. But the step is taken, and I have engaged a boy, and there is no more to be said. Now, pray, Caddy," said Mrs. Jellyby—for Caddy was kissing her, "don't delay me in my work, but let me clear off this heavy batch of papers before the after-noon post comes in!"

I thought I could not do better than take my leave; I was detained for a moment by Caddy's saying:

"You won't object to my bringing him to see you, Ma?"

"O dear me, Caddy," cried Mrs. Jellyby, who had plunged into that distant contemplation, "have you begun again? Bring whom?"

"Him, Ma."

"Caddy, Caddy!" said Mrs. Jellyby, quite weary of such little matters. "Then you must bring him some evening which is not a Parent Society night, or a Branch night, or a Ramification night. You must accommodate the visit to the demands upon my time. My dear Miss Summerson, it was very kind of you to come here to help me out this silly chit. Good-by! When I tell you I have fifty-eight new letters from manufacturing families anxious to understand the details of the Native and Coffee Cultivation question this morning, I need not apologize for having very little leisure."

I was not surprised by Caddy's being in low spirits, when we went down stairs; or by her sobbing afresh on my neck, or by her saying she would far rather have been scolded than treated with such indifference, or by her confiding to me that she was so poor in clothes, that she was ever to be expected peculiarly she didn't know.—I gradually cheered her up, by dwelling on the many things she would do for her unfortunate father, and for Peepy, when she had a home of her own; and finally went down stairs into the damp dark kitchen, where Peepy and his little brothers and sisters were grovelling on the stone floor, and where we had such a game of play with them; that to prevent myself from being long quite torn to pieces I was obliged to fall back on fairy tales. From time to time I heard loud voices in the parlor overhead; and occasionally a violent tumbling about of the furniture. The last effect I am afraid was caused by poor Mr. Jellyby breathing away from the dining table, and making rushes at the window with the intention of throwing himself into the area, whenever he made any new attempt to understand his affairs.

As I rode so quietly home at night after the day's bustle, I thought a good deal of Caddy's engagement, and felt confirmed in my hopes (in spite of the elder Mr. Turveydrop), that she would be the happier and better for it. And if there seemed to be but a slender chance of herand her husband ever finding out what the conduct of Deportment really was, that was all for the best, too, and who would wish them to be wiser? I did not wish them to be any wiser, and indeed was half ashamed of not entirely believing in him myself. And I looked up at the stars, and thought about travelers in distant countries and the stars they saw, and hoped I might always be so blest and happy as to be useful to some one in my small way.

They were so glad to see me when I got home, as they always were, that I could have sat down and cried for joy, if that had not been a method of making myself disagreeable. Every body in the house, from Mr. Jarndyce to the highest, showed me such a bright face of welcome, and spoke so cheerily, and was so happy to do any thing for me, that I suppose there never was such a fortunate little creature in the world.

We got into such a chatty state that night, through Ada and my Guardian drawing me out to tell them all about Caddy, that I sent you to tell them all about Caddy, that I sent you my prose, prosing, for a length of time! At last, I got up to say my say room, quite red to think how I had been holding forth and then I heard a soft tap at my door. So I said, "Come in!" and there came in a pretty little girl, neatly dressed in mourning, who dropped a courtesy.

"If you please, miss," said the little girl, in a soft voice, "I am Charley."

"Why, so you are," said I, stooping down in astonishment, and giving her a kiss, "How glad I am to see you, Charley!"

"If you please, miss," pursued Charley, in the same soft voice, "I'm your maid."

"Charley?"

"If you please, miss, I'm a present to you, with Mr. Jarndyce's love."

I sat down with my hand on Charley's neck, and looked at Charley.

"And O, miss," says Charley, clapping her hands, with the tears starting down her dimpled cheeks, "Tom's at school, if you please, and learning so good! And little Emma, she's with Mrs. Blinder, miss, a-being took such care of! And Tom he would have been at school—and Emma, she would have been left with Mrs. Blinder—and me I should have been here—all a deal sooner, miss; only Mr. Jarndyce thought that Tom and Emma and me had better get a little use to parting first, we was so small. Don't cry, if you please, miss!"

"I can't help it, Charley."

"No, miss, nor I can't help it," says Charley. "And if you please, miss, Mr. Jarndyce's love, and he thinks you'll like to teach me now and then. And if you please, Tom and Emma and me is to see each other once a month. And I'm so happy see each other once a month. And I'm so happy and so thankful, miss," cried Charley, with a beaming heart, "and I'll try to be such a good maid!"

"O, Charley dear, never forget who did all this!"

"No, miss, I never will. Nor Tom won't, nor yet Emma. It was all you, miss."

"I have known nothing of it. It was Mr. Jarndyce, Charley."

"Yes, miss, but it was all done for the love of you, and that you might be my mistress. If you please, miss, I am a little present with his love, and it was all done for the love of you. Me and Tom was to be sure to remember it.

Charley dried her eyes, and entered on her function: going in her matronly way about and about the room, and folding up everything she could lay her hands upon. Presently, Charley came creeping back to my side, and said:

"O, don't cry, if you please, miss."

And I said again, "I can't help it, Charley."

And Charley said again, "No, miss, nor I can't help it." And so, after all, I did cry for joy indeed, and so did she.

☞ Among the most notable recent elections of which we have no account, are those of Mike Walsh and Gerrit Smith to Congress, from New York, and of J. Rufus King, Wm. H. Watson & John. S. Fillmore PROPRIETORS

UNDER THE SAME AND FIRM OF

RUFUS KING & CO.

THANKSGIVING.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

AS A PEOPLE we have abundant reason for the exercise of gratitude to the Supreme Being, for the condition of health, the abundant harvest, the peaceable submission to civil law and order, and the general prosperity with which we have been favored, as a State during the past year. And as the unworthy recipients of these and other kind blessings, we are called upon to suitably recognize the Benevolent source, "whence cometh every good and perfect gift."

THEREFORE, I, LEONARD J. FARWELL, Governor of the State of Wisconsin; hereby appoint Thursday, the TWENTY FIFTH day of November next, as a day of Thanksgiving to ALMIGHTY GOD. And respectfully request the people of Wisconsin to properly observe the same.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed. L. S. at Madison, this twenty fifth day of October, in the year of Our Lord, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Fifty Two.

By the Governor, LEONARD J. FARWELL.

CHARLES D. ROBINSON, Secretary of State.

Per JOHN W. HUNT, Deputy.

FROM OUR NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Monday, November 1st. }

We are on the eve of the great election, and with high hopes of success; but so near the event, and when, indeed, the result will be known to you by telegraph before this letter can reach you, it were worse than idle to speculate. But this I may say, that a more important election, as regards the welfare, the character and the peace of the republic, has not been pending for many a long year. With SCOTT for President, we should have, so far as the President can fashion the policy of the country—protection to domestic industry, improvement of rivers and harbors, inviolable observance of good faith with foreign nations, and firm, but courteous maintenance of our own national rights everywhere. With Mr. PIERCE would come in the "manifest destiny," or "filibustier" spirit, free trade and poverty, abandoned rivers and harbors, the plunder of weaker nations for the spread of slavery, and a rude, coarse, vaunting, and insolent foreign policy—that could not fail to embroil us in serious difficulties, if not in war. So believing, I shall look upon it as a signal calamity if Mr. Pierce and his party prevail.

The death and obsequies of Mr. Webster still form the chief topic of conversation, writing, and thinking. There has been no such spectacle since the death of Gen. Washington, and not then, and never, perhaps, was there so sublimely simple and touching a ceremonial as the burial of the great Massachusetts man. It was a nation pouring out its heart of hearts before a dead benefactor. It was the most unmistakeable tribute ever paid to extraordinary capacity, patriotism, and public service. All was as simple as nature herself, and as beautiful and touching. It was my happiness—if indeed that word can be written of an event so overwhelmingly sad—to witness this funeral; and its impression can never fade from my mind. The genuine New England character was never more feelingly displayed than by the assembled sons of Mus-achusetts around that honored grave—assembled by thousands, of their own motion—in obedience to a strong stirring of the heart, which would not rest without joining in the last tribute to the great dead. There they stood, the men of Massachusetts, farmers for the most part, with solemn mien, and slow sad words to interchange, almost inaudibly, with each other, upon the irreparable common loss. They came all practicable distances around, and having had him, their idol and their benefactor, to rest, they retraced their steps, sorrowing most of all, that they should never see his face again. There yet hangs, or seems to hang, over us, a dark cloud, as tho' with him sank into the grave one mighty to serve and to save a nation, leaving behind no fellow. But, happily, he cannot all die. He is on record, and in his published speeches will be found, for all time, maxims of wisdom and incentives to patriotic devotion, that will go on improving and honorably stimulating the youth of our country, from generation to generation.

The steamer Pacific is in to-day, with rather a long passage—almost 13 days!—from Liverpool. Her accounts vary but little from those immediately preceding her. The Empire in France was making sure progress, and indeed, after the programme of it shadowed forth by Louis Napoleon's speech at Bordeaux, it is merely a question as to the proper time to declare it, the decision being taken to do so soon. That speech, by the bye, was a very remarkable one for its specious and taking phrases—a coin of so much potency in France. It manifested as great ability, and as thorough appreciation of French character and tastes, as anything in the immortal bulletins of Napoleon the Great. I think it is quite clear that the antithesis heretofore often made between Napoleon the great, and Napoleon the little, is antithesis merely, and not fact; for it cannot be denied that Louis Napoleon has made proof of great abilities, as well as of great daring.

France really seems to rejoice in the near prospect of the Empire—and this results, I think, essentially, from the abuses of freedom, consequent upon the overthrow of Louis Philippe,—when the rights of property and all the relations between labor and capital, and between work and bread were attempted to be subverted, and consequently industry was paralized, labor unemployed and capital depreciated. It is not that Frenchmen love liberty less than other people—but that with new and bitter experience of its fruits, they dread license and anarchy. The material interests and prosperity of the industrious classes will exercise, happily, more influence over political events than even the passions or the ambition of men, or the love of glory: and when any course of events leads to the disturbance of industry, the interruption of the order and well-being of the workers of the nation,—that course of events cannot long be persevered in. It is therefore rather from the abuses of liberty that France is recoiling towards the restored Empire, than from any love of Despotism or disinclination to free institutions. A great lesson this, to teach,—if wisely improved—that moderation, even in the pursuit of acknowledged good, is more sure of success than more vehement, and therefore often misjudging, enthusiasm.

The New Secretary of State.

The appointment of Hon. EDWARD EVERETT, as Secretary of State, to succeed Mr. Webster, gives very general satisfaction. He is a man of the highest order of intellectual ability, and of abundant experience in diplomatic affairs. He has been Representative in Congress, Governor of Massachusetts, and Minister to England, discharging the duties of each office with ability and fidelity. His reputation as a literary man is second to none in our country.

THE ATTEMPTED COALITION.—Every Whig in this city, except 20, voted for Durkee.—Kenosha Dem.

The Free Democrat don't discover either "coalition" or "treachery," in Whigs voting for Mr. DURKEE. But for Whigs to vote for Mr. WELLS is regards as little short of high treason. We think that one is just as excusable as the other and both equally wrong.

PURCHASE OF CUBA.—A rumor is in circulation east that an offer has been made to the Spanish Government for the purchase of Cuba, by our Ambassador at Madrid. We dont believe a word of it. The Loco Foco party mean to get possession of it by force, as soon as they are comfortably seated in power.

AFTER ELECTION.—The Sentinel considers Boothism so utterly prostrated by the recent election that it can now give it a parting kick: yet, for the past four years, the Sentinel has truckled to Boothism in every form.—Wisconsin.

Substitute "Wisconsin" for "Sentinel" in the above paragraph and nobody can doubt that "Little Twinkle" has for once spoke truth.

THE RESULT IN THIS DISTRICT.

We annex a comparative statement of the vote in this District, by Counties, for Electors and Congress, as far as returns have been received.—The table is complete so far as Milwaukee, Waukesha and Racine Counties are concerned. From Kenosha all but one town, Brighton, is given, and from Walworth all but 3 towns on the Presidential and 6 on the Congressional vote:

The above figures need no comment. Taking the District through, Mr. WELLS runs but little ahead of his ticket, while Mr. DURKEE gains and Mr. DURAND loses from 12 to 1500 votes respectively. It is obvious at a glance that Mr. WELLS was elected by sheer party strength, and that of the Whigs who did not vote for Mr. DURAND, the great majority cast their ballots for Mr. DURKEE.

In the first bitterness of its chagrin and disappointment at Mr. DURKEE's defeat, the Free Democrat charged the result to a "coalition" between the Whigs and Democrats, and falsely accused the Sentinel of being a party to the plot.—The table of votes gives the lie so conclusively to this wanton and malignant fabrication as to render further reply superfluous. The same paper, in the attempt to bolster up its falsehood, exclaimed:

We call the attention of Whigs and Free Soilers throughout the District to the fact, and the proof that Mr. Wells was elected by Whig votes.

The figures above given dispose both of this "fact" and "proof" and leave the Free Democrat's false charge without so much as a straw to sustain it.

FAIR PLAY.—The Kenosha Telegraph, on the eve of election, taxed us with "urging the Whigs to go for Durand, quite sure, all the time, it must elect Wells," and further charged that "having no hope of electing Durand," we had "made an alliance with Wells" to do what he could for us. Both charges were wholesale fabrications and we branded them as such accordingly. By way of repairing the wrong done us, the Telegraph, since election, talks thus:

We are willing and anxious now to ascertain who has fabricated the false stuff in this matter.—Rufus King & Co., may take which horn of the following dilemma they choose. Either they knew that Mr. Wells would get most of the Whig votes of Milwaukee co., or else they must confess themselves the greatest asses that ever attempted to make an estimate on a political result. Will the Sentinel now have the manhood to say, that it told a falsehood itself for the meanest purpose in the world, viz: for making a cats-paw of that infallible stool-pigeon of Racine. This hypocrisy is so glaring, open, and manifest, that the Sentinel is actually ashamed, (out of respect, we suppose for the opinions of its readers,) to publish the Congressional vote of its own city.

The Sentinel published "the Congressional vote of its own city" in full on Thursday morning just as soon as we could get it, and the Telegraph, which receives our Daily in exchange, had the evidence of this before its eyes when it stooped to the inexcusable meanness of falsely representing us with suppressing this vote!

Again; so far from "knowing" that Mr. WELLS would get most of the Whig votes of Milwaukee county," we knew just the contrary. And the official canvass sustains us. Gen. SCOTT received 2015 votes in Milwaukee, including at least 3 to 400 Democratic votes, and Mr. DURAND received 1229, being more than two-thirds of the entire Whig vote. The alternative of being fools, or liars, we therefore politely re-tender to the Kenosha Telegraph. It may take either, or both horns.

Lastly; we claim to have treated Mr. DURKEE, his friends and the Free Soil organs with fairness and civility, all through the canvass, while standing up, as well as we knew how, for our own cause and candidates against all opposition. In return, they have made the Sentinel the object of their most vindictive assaults and venomous falsehoods. It is a refreshing illustration of their regard for truth, fair-dealing and civil intercourse.—The Kenosha Telegraph, in particular, not only attacks and abuses the Sentinel on its own hook, but copies the whole of the Free Democrat's diatribe against us, which we have proved false in every single particular. We call upon the Telegraph to publish our reply, since it gave currency to this lying and gratuitous attack, and we shall know, by the answer which it makes to this request, how to regard and treat it in future.

The Free Democrat's Falsehoods.

The Free Democrat refuses to be comforted, in view of its defeat in this district, and insists upon holding the Sentinel responsible for the disaster. Very well; let the Free Democrat only tell the truth in the premises, and the Sentinel is perfectly willing to stand all the responsibility that attaches to it. Yesterday the Free Democrat varied its indictment against the Sentinel thus:

We said, and still say, that whether Mr. Durkee could or could not have been elected, the treachery of the Sentinel to its own party and its former professed principles, in urging Durkee Whigs to go for Durand, and holding out to them the hope of his election, when it was saying privately that there was no possible chance for his success, and at the same time being privy to the scheme of the whigs here to elect Wells, is dishonorable, &c.

And we "said and still say" that the man who charges us with saying any such thing, or being privy to any such a plot, is an unscrupulous liar. As to the idea that support of Mr. DURAND was "treachery" to our own party and principles, that is a refreshing piece of impudence worthy only of the Free Democrat.

This same reckless and mendacious print sums up its case thus. It charges the Sentinel:

"That it declared publicly that the whigs of this city were not going for Wells;

That they were going unitedly for Durand;

That Durand's chance of an election was good;

That it gave private assurances that the whigs here would not go for Wells—

That Durand had no chance of an election.

That it was cheek by jowl with the schemers who gave Wells some 750 whig votes in this county."

The first four counts are indisputable. We said these very things, believed them and did our utmost to verify them. But the last two are lies out of whole cloth—reckless inventions which we defy the Free Democrat, or any of its tribe to prove.

Lastly; the Free Democrat threatens us with "disaffection and indignation among Whigs," for our part in defeating Mr. DURKEE (!) and tells us of one anonymous gentleman in particular, who is satisfied that we would, "at any time, sell out the Whig party," for our own advantage. Well; whenever we do, we beg to assure the anonymous gentleman that we will except him from the bill of sale and deed him especially to the Free Democrat. For ourselves, the best possible evidence we can have that we did our whole duty as "a Whig organ" in the recent contest, is furnished by the furious invectives of our discomfited neighbor.

A STRIKING LIKENESS.—Our friendly neighbour of the Wisconsin is at great pains to copy, from time to time, such complimentary allusions to ourselves as he chances to find in the Loco Foco, or Free Soil papers. The least we can do is, occasionally, to repay him by like civilities. We therefore transfer, from the Kenosha Telegraph, the following pen-and-ink sketch of the Wisconsin editor. The likeness is certainly not flattered, tho' strongly drawn:

MR. CLEMENT:—Allow me the privilege of saying, if in this world there is a man completely wanting in every attribute of manhood, it is the editor of the Milwaukee Wisconsin. A sneaking and cowardly notice election, when it is doubtful where the popular majority will be, after election, the whiffet dog is braver over a harmless foe, than he is over a defeated opponent. At the very time when men are laying down the words of strife for those of generous confidence on one hand, and grateful responses on the other, this thing who during the battle sneaked cowardly in a corner, now grows of a sudden brave, and Falstaff-like stabs the body that was slain by noble hands. Charles Durkee is a man that among men, under any circumstances, can command words of respect and kindness, but the editor of the Wisconsin, like the animal I have before alluded to, grows braver over Durkee's defeat, and barks out at his retreating heels, the epithets he was afraid to even snarl when it was possible Durkee might again receive the popular favor.

VOLUME VIII. MILWAUKEE DAILY SENTINEL. NEW SERIES.

DAILY SENTINEL.

Gleanings from the Mails.

Hon. Thomas M. Foote, the newly appointed Charge d'Affairs to Austria, has sailed for Austria.

A dreadful railroad accident occurred at Windsor, Vermont, on Saturday week. The train was passing a canal, and one of the passenger cars was upset, and fell into the canal, in 12 feet of water. There were 20 passengers in the car, several of whom were seriously injured, and two drowned. The latter were brothers, named Parker, just returned from California.

The new law of Maryland, in regard to currency, went into operation on the 1st ult. By the provisions of the law, no one can either pay out or receive a note of less denomination than five dollars, issued beyond the limits of Maryland, without subjecting himself to a penalty of five dollars, one half of which is the reward of the informant.

The deaths by cholera at Toronto since the 28th of September, were 198. At last dates, the epidemic had nearly disappeared.

The tolls on the New York Canals up to the 31st of October, reached $2,557,838, a decrease of $216,227 from last year.

The Hon. Rufus Choate is expected to argue a case before the Circuit Court in Washington during this week, involving an award of $86,000 by the late Mexican Board of Commissioners.

The Rev. Dr. Berrian, rector of Trinity Church, N. Y., has refused the use of that building for a religious service on the day of the funeral of the Duke of Wellington.

The Prussian Police made arrests, on information sent by the Chief of Police in New York, of individuals sent to Europe to pass forged Prussian notes fabricated in America. One of them was arrested before he landed from the ship at Bremen, with a large amount of the forged paper in his possession: the other has just been taken at Dusseldorff, having arrived by another route.—Every step of the [illegible] of the band, and the Berlin police by a memo[illegible] ments only they were allowed to carry out their attempts, to fall into the hands of the authorities when the proof was ripe.

A long pending suit in Cincinnati, between Nicholas Longworth and the heirs of the late Wm. Irvin, has been compromised. The latter got 94½ acres of land, within the corporate limits of the city. It is of immense value.

Judge Hoyt, of the Supreme Court of New York, has resigned his office, to become Superintendent of the Buffalo and N. Y. City railroad. The latter post gives him a salary of $4000 a year—the former gave him $2500.

The steamship Washington, seized for smuggling, has been released after giving security in the sum of $160,000.

Wm. Somers, charged as accessary in the murder of Ann Hoag, who was executed some time since, has been tried and acquitted.

Capt. Whipple, of the ship Grey Eagle, has arrived at Philadelphia, bearing despatches for Washington, containing the treaty ratified with Brazil.

The mammoth English three-decker screw steamer, which was to be called the Windsor Castle, has had its name changed to "The Duke of Wellington." So, in the French navy, the largest ship is the "Napoleon."

There seems to be little doubt now that the accounts of gold discovered in Canada are fully confirmed. The washings are situated on the river Dupont, near its junction with the Chaudiere, some 50 miles from Quebec.

Geo. Shattuck, Esqr., of Boston, has given $7000 to Dartmouth College for the erection of an observatory, on condition that the Trustees raise $3000 for the purchase of instruments.

The first column of the New York Crystal Palace was raised on Saturday week, in presence of a vast concourse of people. Governor Hunt, the Mayor, and most of the City Council, were present. Theodore Sedgwick, President of the Association, made an Address, to which Governor Hunt replied.

THE FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE closed at New York on Friday week, having been open for nearly four weeks. A long list of the premiums awarded was read in the afternoon, and in the evening a short address was delivered by Gen James Tallmadge, an ex-President of the Institute. The receipts exceeded those of any previous annual fair by nearly $5000.

A huge bear, which had made havoc among the flocks in the neighborhood of Canawa, Vt., was lately hunted and killed. He weighed 540 lbs.

A lump of gold has been taken out at Downieville, California, weighing over 200 ounces.—Another, taken out, near the same place, is valued at $500.

The fur trade in Western Virginia is still very large. One firm lately shipped from Parkersburg, 2700 raccoon skins, 4,500 mink, 1000 red fox, 5,500 gray do, 6,500 opossum, 3000 wild cat, 500 bear, and 6000 deer skins. A panther skin is shown, measuring 10 ft. 4 inches from tip to tip.

Arrangements are on foot in New York, for the conveyance of a large number of emigrants to Hayti. They go to Dominica, the Spanish part of the island. The movement has a mischievous look.

Two hundred and sixty-one vessels arrived in San Francisco in July and August. Most of them are of the largest class.

Moses A. Dow, editor of the Boston Waverly Magazine, was lately taken in and done for by the New York mock autioneers to the tune of $167,50.

MR. WEBSTER'S DISEASE.—The Boston Atlas has the following in regard to the developments of the post mortem examination of Mr. Webster's body:

We learn that a very careful, minute and accurate examination was made, under the eye of one of the best living morbid anatomists, and the results carefully noted down. We presume that they will be, in due time, carefully collated and made public, as the will be of great interest to the admirers of intellectual greatness and to the scientific world. We understand that at a recent meeting of a medical society, some of the more striking results of the examination were stated, and formed the subject of an interesting scientific discussion The cerebral organs were of the very largest known capacity, exceeding by thirty per centum the average weight of the human brain; and with only two known exceptions, (Cuvier and Dupuytren,) the largest of which there is any record. It is also worthy of remark, that a well marked effusion upon the arachnoid membrane was discovered in these investigations, although there were no perceptible evidences of any lesion during Mr. Webster's lifetime. It is supposed to have been caused by his severe fall from his carriage in Kingston last spring. It is a remarkable physical circumstance, that an injury which would have separated the intellect, if not at once caused death, in another should in this instance have been attended with so little external evidence of so important an injury to a vital organ.

ILLNESS.—Our State has done nobly in her representatives to Congress. Whilst the Whigs have lost in all the late elections, the whigs have, in all probability gained three members, and perhaps four. Amidst the general defeat, this is a consolation and triumph for the whigs of Illinois, and worthy of especial notice in a State which for years had but one whig representative.—Chicago Tribune.

GEN.—Twenty-two counties, Clark Fayette, Greene, Miami, Preble, Scioto, Madison, Butler, Fairfield, Hocking, Medina, Seneca, Trumbull, Wayne, Ashtabula, Lake, Cuyahoga, Columbiana, Morrow, Stark, Lucas, and Hamilton, show a whig gain of 700 on the election of October. We think Pierce's majority will vary but little from that of Caldwell.—Cleveland Herald.

Baltimore, Nov. 4.

The New Orleans Bulletin denies the statement made by telegraph, that Mr. Laborde, the Spanish Consul had left for Havana, from fear of personal violence. He is still at New Orleans.

Washington, Nov. 4.

We learn from a reliable source, that Commissioner Ewbank had not been removed, but that he has resigned, and Mr. Hodges of Vermont had been appointed Commissioner of Patents in his place, and will enter upon his duties next Monday.

St. Louis, Nov. 3

The Salt Lake Mail arrived at Independence Mo. on the 29th ult. with one month later from Utah. The Pawnees were becoming troublesome, and had robbed a party of California emigrants.

The Chickasaws were at war with the Pawnees.

GENTLEMEN'S FURNISHING GOODS.

They are confident in view of their very superior and unsurpassed facilities for the purchase of goods in the Eastern markets from cash auctions, importers and manufacturers, in all cases from first hands, one of the firm residing and superintending the business of their concern in Philadelphia, that they are not only able to buy and sell goods from 20 to 25 per cent cheaper than most houses in the city who buy on credit, and of jobbers, but they are able and are determined to sell that much cheaper. To undertake it superfluous to attempt, as it is impossible to enumerate the articles that comprise their stock, which in extent is unrivalled by any similar establishment west of the Atlantic cities.

To their friends and customers, and those who know them, it is needless to say anything, but to strangers who are in want of articles comprising their stock, they will say, call on us and let us show you the great inducements we are able to offer; we will give you polite and respectful attention, with better bargains than you are able to get elsewhere. The most perfect satisfaction is guaranteed in all cases to those who deal with us.

HAWKINS'

STAVE DRESSING MACHINE.

PATENTED JULY 22, 1851.

THIS machine is now in successful operation at the shop of Wm. Hawkins in this city, and will dress Staves for

Packing, Flour and Whiskey

BARRELS,

and PIPES or HOGSHEADS, at the rate of

600 Whiskey or 800 Flour Barrel Staves

straight, winding or crooked. In fact, any stave that can be worked by hand will be dressed by this machine, either for light or heavy work, from 6 inches to 12 inches in length of any reasonable width, and to any requisite bilge, and in the most perfect manner. The stave passes through the machine and under the cutters, the rotary cutters and is then ready for the truss-hoops. The dressing of the sides and jointing of the edge of the stave is performed to perfectly. The machine is made of iron, is strong and durable, and is not difficult to keep in order for use. Six horse power is sufficient to drive the machine with all the speed necessary.

The Subscribers having purchased of Wm. Hawkins the patent right for the United States are prepared to sell rights for States, Counties, or for running single machines and to furnish and set up the machines, warranted to put forth perfectly. In the great saving of expense of transportation of dressed over the rough stave, the rapidity, and perfect uniformity of work in order for use, &c. &c. no more need be said in order to show the immense value of this machine.

Satisfactory testimonials can be furnished if desired.

MILWAUKEE MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

Office 185 East Water Street.

Capital over $165,000—in Cash and Premium Notes

THIS Company offers unrivalled facilities for the insurance of Buildings and Personal Property against fire. The advantage offered are especially beyond the reach of competition, as the real estate insured is by law bound for the assessment made to cover losses beyond the power of extension. Every person insured is a member of the Company, and entitled to vote once. The rate of insurance does not exceed one-third as much as in Stock Companies, saving nothing of the increased security and the incontrovertible value which losses are settled. During the last five years, this Company have issued 2600 Policies, and made but three assessments at a cost to the property insured, not exceeding one dollar. Its liabilities to be promptly paid over all this State.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HAY PRESS.

THE IMPROVED PATENT LEVER RAILWAY PRESS EXCELS ALL OTHERS now in use for pressing Hay, Cotton, Hemp, Wool, Hops, Rags, Sea-weed and will be warranted to perform well and do double the work that any other press can with the same number of hands, with less than half the draught; a small boy can attend the hors, and the running back of the follower with ease. The time required in running up the follower, is fifteen seconds. A bale of Hay can be pressed in less than one minute, at ordinary all day work—seven or eight bales can be pressed and bound per hour. Bales of Hay can be pressed, weighing over 400 lbs., measuring two feet square and four feet long. Bales of Cotton can be made compact enough without compressing.

The construction of this press is such that it does not require a building expressly for it as it may be placed in any barn or shed, and the horse may move in any direction, or at any distance from it; and when the bale is ready for delivery, it is discharged instantly, and the follower gradually recedes as the Hay is pressed out.

The construction is so simple that any man can make a Press, or keep it in order.

The travel for a horse, in running up a bale, is only feet, while in a screw press, the travel is one hundred and fifty in running the screw up and down. We have one how Press now in operation at Waukesha, Wis., and two others in process of construction.

So great a failure of the hay crop as has occurred in all of the Eastern and Atlantic States, the present season cannot fail to ensure a great demand for Presses to buy Hay in Wisconsin or Illinois, who may take hold of and handle it well and with energy. The hay may be shipped during the present fall, and three months of the spring navigation, before the new hay
